

JF&CS A TOP WOMEN-LED BUSINESS IN MASS.

Jewish Family & Children's Service of Waltham was honored October 24 at the Seaport Boston Hotel by The Commonwealth Institute (TCI) as a top 100 women-led business in Massachusetts, ranking #32.

"Being recognized as #32 in the top 100 women-led businesses in Massachusetts is truly an honor," said Rimma Zelfand, JF&CS CEO. "This is especially meaningful during our 150th anniversary when we continue to emphasize that we change with times and that improving lives is our main goal. We are thrilled that our impact on the community is being recognized."

TCI, a Boston-based nonprofit, uses a community-based model to help women leaders become and stay successful. Its members include CEOs, senior executives, directors of nonprofits and solo professionals. For the past 13 years, TCI has compiled the list to highlight the achievements of Massachusetts women; this year's list includes nonprofits as well as for-profit organizations.
