

Charitable donations announced

Krokidas & Bluestein LLP, a Boston-based law firm, announced it has awarded charitable donations in the amount of $3,500 to 35 Massachusetts-based non-profits, including two in Waltham, in celebration of its 35th anniversary.

The amount, totaling more than $120,000, is in addition to the firm's regular donations.

The Waltham-based organizations among the recipients were:

Jewish Family & Children Services, which provides support for some of the commonwealth's most vulnerable populations by helping those victimized by financial crisis, hunger and domestic abuse find the resources they need to improve their quality of life.

Wayside Academy, which supports youth who struggle to find success in classroom settings; the school blends clinical, behavioral and academic support to push these children toward achievement in and out of the classroom.

The recipients of Krokidas & Bluestein's anniversary grants provide critical services to those vulnerable to economic and health challenges, according to the organization.
